The magazine door-to-door salesmen are out in force in Boise once again. These salesmen say they are from San Diego, in their 20's, bold, and will usually try to get into your home. We find as these types of salespeople go through our city, they leave a wake of crime in their path.

Please be wary of all door-to-door salespeople. If you didn't need it before, you probably don't need it when they come to your home.

You don't need to open your door to anyone you don't know or are not expecting. Use your wide-angle peephole or a window to see who is ringing your doorbell before you open that door.

If you open your door to them, ask immediately for a Boise City license. Each sales person must be licensed by the city to sell products. If they don't have a city license, call police dispatch 377-6790, and give the dispatcher your location, the description of the sales people, any vehicle you see them with, and that the person(s) are unlicensed.
